The HO, the world's only "Live at Leeds" -era Who cover band, brings all the intensity, volume and pomp of a vintage Who concert to a small club setting. The HO combines serious musicianship with good-humoured parody to provide Who fans with what they've been missing out on for years - real, raw, unadulterated rock 'n' roll.

Fans just "can't explain" the thrill of experiencing -- live! -- the windmill guitars, microphone twirls, ripping bass riffs and impossible drum assaults of classic 1970's Who. With tongue-in-cheek, dressed in wigs and vintage outfits -- white boiler suit, sexy suede fringes, eerie skeleton suit, and British target T -- The Ho brings the legend back to life. Their sound is big, powerful and "sloppy" -- a worthy "substitute" for the original. Best of all, The Ho still has all four original members.

Reclaiming the "punk-rock" spirit the geezers once possessed, The HO features Dave Mello (Operation Ivy, Schlong) as Keith Moon; Lucio Menegon (Ramona the Pest, Reverend Screaming Fingers) as Pete Townshend; Joey Schaaf (Zebu) as Roger Daltrey; and Tim Romain (CheckPoint Charlie) as John "Shaft" Entwistle.

So why pay $100 to see The Who do their oldies schtick at some enormous, acoustically nightmarish outdoor venue this summer? Come and get a big ol' serving of Maximum BBQ instead - while there's plenty to go around.

The Ho has pledged this to be their last "Farewell Tour" and will be appearing on the West Coast, from Seattle to Los Angeles, from July 23-31. This is a one-time event - don't miss it!
